

GARRI Global Religion Research Initiative

Funding the social scientific study of global religion

Housed in the Center for the Study of Religion and Society within the Department of Sociology at the University of Notre Dame, the GARRI supports the study of religion from a global perspective.

Application Deadline
October 17, 2016

Through six distinct competitive research and writing grants and fellowships, GARRI will distribute $3.1 million to scholars of global religion.

1

Dissertation Fellowships

You're already into your dissertation and you need a year to finish it.

2

Postdoctoral Research

You want to continue your research at Notre Dame before taking a tenure-track position.

3

Curriculum Development

You want to incorporate global religion into your class, or design a new course.

4

International Collaboration

You want to collaborate with a colleague overseas and need funds to get rolling.

5

Project Launch

You have an idea for a project but need some seed money to get going on it.

6

Book Leave

You already have a book going and you need a year to finish it.

Learn more about the programs and how to apply at grrr.nd.edu